Adventure in Food Trading

& Capital District Farmers Market Wins

Cleanliness is highly important when it comes to food products and food preparation. When Eric Guenther decided to move his specialty foods market to the Capital District Farmers Market in Menands, the whole family got involved. Eric rented a building from Fred Cole the General Manager of Capital District Farmers Market. The building was used as a storage warehouse and had been vacant for a period of time. It was in need of a thorough cleaning and some minor repairs. Eric's father, regional facilities manager for Citizens Bank, recommended Americlean as the only cleaning contractor he would go with. Americlean's team of industrial cleaners thoroughly cleaned the facility, using a combination of pressure washing technology, biodegradable detergents, hand scrubbing and vacuuming to remove all dirt, grime, mold, mildew, weather marks, oxidation and any loose or flaking paint. They paid special attention to cleaning the walk-in cooler.

Fred, who was committed to providing an environment that exceeded the Food Service Industry standards, said "Its Incredible! I would have never believed it was the same building."

Eric and his father were also impressed and could now get moving on opening the Adventures in Food Trading specialty food store. The store features high end food products such as wild game, imported cheeses, special caviars, hard to find food items and special linens. Eric said " Our backs were against the wall, we had to close up on Friday move our whole operation into a vacant warehouse and reopen ready to serve the public on the following Tuesday. Americlean was here within 24 hours of our call. They showed up on time and did an unbelievable job! Americlean finished ahead of schedule and we were able to meet our deadline". Adventures in Food Trading is now open to the public and if you get a chance go down and check it out.

Fred Cole stated "What a GREAT job your crews did on the Adventures in Food Trading building, now it looks like we have more work for you."
